Frequently Asked Questions
Visits and the Threat from Terrorism

What should we do about visits given the threat of terrorist attacks?

The current global situation means that the possibility of being close to, or caught up in, a terrorist attack is a risk we all face. Like all risks this needs to be kept in perspective and managed in a thoughtful and proportionate way.

For advice on how to plan and manage off-site visits while taking into account the terror threat see document 4.4e “Terrorism”.

Other sources of advice can be found at:

- www.gov.uk/terrorism-national-emergency;
- www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice;